The Verdiet Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, druggist, Bippus, Ind., testines: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of rheumatism of ten years' slanding." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohlo, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all diseases of the liver, kidneys or blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at S. J. Great excitement in Texas.

Great excitement has been caused in the vicinity of Paris, Texas, by the recovery of J. E. Corley, who was so helpiess he could not turn in bed, or raise his head; everybody said he was dying of consumption. A trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery was sent him. Finding relief, he bought a large bottle and a box of Dr. King's New Life Pills; by the time he had taken two boxes of pills and two-bottles of the Discovery, he was well and had gained in flesh thirty-six pounds. Trial bottles of this great Discovery free at S. J. Hodgkinson & Co's.

SUPREME COURT OF NEVADA.

ExParte M. W. Rosenblatt.

(BY BELKNAP, J.) (BY BELKNAP, J.)

The petitioner was convicted of a violation of an act of the Legislature of the State, approved February 23d, 1885, entitled, An Act providing for the licensing of traveling merchants, and merchants doing business through soliciting agents. commonly known as drummers," (Sec. 1390, Gen'l Stats.) in acting as soliciting agent or drummer without preouring a license therefor. He is held in custody under a commitment issued upon the ludgment.

under a commitment issued upon the judgment.

In his petition for a writ of habeas corpus, he allleges that he is a resident of the state of California, and that he was at the time of his arrest a traveling merchant, soliciting agent and drummer, offering goods, wares and merchandise for sale in the town of Reno, to be delivered at a future time from the State of California by his principals, residents of that State.

That by the Act of the Legislature before mentioned, it is made a misdemannor to exercise any such occupation without first having obtained a license therefor, and that under this law he was convicted, first in the Court of the Justice of the Peace, and afterwards upon appeal in the District Court of Washoe county. He avers that the enactment of the Legislature imposing the license tax is unconstitutional and vold, because repugnant to tnat clause of the Constitution of the United States which declares that Congress shall have power to regulate commerce among the several States, and prays to be released from his imprisonment.

The Supreme@Court of the United States in a recent case—that of Robbins v. Tax-the United States which declares that Congress shall have power to regulate commerce among the several States, and prays to be released from his imprisonment.

The SupremejCourt of the United States in a recent case—that of Robbins v. Taxing District of Shelby county, 120 U.S. 489—considered the constitutionality of a statute of the State of Tennessee, involving the same question. The Tennessee statute declared that "all drummers, and all persons not having a regular licensed house of business in the taxing district, offering for sale or selling goods, wares or merchandise therein by sample, shall be required to pay to the County Trustee the sum of ten dollars ($10) per week, or twenty-five dollars per month for such privilege, and no license shall be issued for a longer term than three months."

Robbins, a citizen of the State of Ohio, employed by citizens of the State, having a business house at Cincinnati, was convicted of a violation of the law. On appeal to the Supreme Court of the State the judgment was affirmed. The case was then carried to the Supreme Court of the State the judgment was affirmed. The case was then carried to the Supreme Court of the State of Tennessee, constituted inter-State commerce and that the license tax imposed by the statute was a tax upon inter-State commerce and that the license tax imposed by the statute was a tax upon inter-State commerce and invalid. The statute of Tennessee and that of this State do not materially differ. Neither imposes a tax upon citizens of other States that does not equally apply to its own citizens, nor is there any discrimination in either statute against other States or their products. The principles of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Robbins case must be accepted as establishing the unconstitutionality of the statute under which the petitioner was convicted. "An unconstitutional law," said the Supreme Court of the United States in Exparte Slebold, 100 U.S. 377, 'is void, and is as no law. An offence created by it is not a crime. A convictio

Dying in Strange Positions.

While coming back to the hospital we found Ike Green, of my company, hanging across the fence dead. He gave out while we were on the skirmish line, and he was not able to get into a wagon. After getting rested, I suppose he started to hunt us up, and while climbing over the fence he was struck with a bullet, and there he stopped. The ball passed through his stomach and spine. He was no coward, else he would have faced the other way when he had such a good chance.

Several dead men have been found in hollow logs or behind logs or rocks, as though they had been wounded and crawled in there to protect themselves. One poor fellow sat behind a big tree with a Bible in his hand. He had been passed a dozen times and more during the day by ambulance drivers and burial squads, but they had all thought that he was alive. He had been shot in the thigh, and he had gone to this tree for protection, taking his Bible out, he thought, no doubt, that he would find consolation in reading it, but while sitting there a ball cut him through the back of the neck deep enough to cut the spinal cord. His head dropped forward a little and there he sat.

The Writing Mood,

The elder Hawthorne is reported to have said that he felt a sense of guilt in writing from a mood. Therein it appears that there was a vast difference between his literary conscience and that of Mr. Anthony Trollope, for instance. Yet, no writer, we venture to say, ever produced anything worth reading, unless he felt in the humor for writing and wrote con amor. Even if the author is not in a mood when he undertakes to write, he speedily gets into one, having formed a determination to do so, and acting upon it. It is notorious that Sheridan, the gifted author of "School for Scandal," wrote freguently, indeed we may say, unusually, from such a mood, the latter part of the very play which has given him the most enduring reputation being composed in a room with the door locked on the outside by an irate manager who took this method of securing its production. This was certainly a mood with a vengence, but he could hard say, judging the result by its literary quality, which is the test after all, that either manager or author was guilty in the matter, except the former of unnardonable procastination.

We are glad to see that the editorial philosophers do not advise their readers to start for the high mountains or the Polar regions, as those methods, while undoubtedly effective, are beyond [PRIES DISPATORES TO THE GAZETTE] the reach of the majority of mankind. So the wise advice is generally given to drink little, and eat wisely of simple food; while the additional warning to keep in the ter in Lake Pleasant is two feet higher If a man should carry out these di-rections he would undoubtedly three to four miles. If one person waits for another to do the work; if one business man refuses to bear his part of the necessary expense, and thinks that his neighbors will do all that is necessary and he will reap just as much of the profit as if he worked and contributed, then is our greatness a long way off. All must help if we would attract a part of the great stream of prosperity our way. And not only must all help, but those must help most who are most certain to gain in the greatest degree by every improvement that is made. Every dollar that is spent in improvement, or in making known the resources of the country, is put out at interest and will reap good returns. It appears that the vessels boats were close in shore when the cutter appeared, with seines set in the water. The vessels cleared out and escaped the cutter, but before the boats could escape, they were seized. There was only one man left on each vessel, and it is thought they will be seized before getting home, as they will have to put in for assistance.

A Successful Strike.

NEW YORK, July 25. The drivers and helpers employed by the Mutual Benefit Ice Company struck successfully this morning for an advance of wages to $15 and $12 per week respectively. Heretofore the drivers and helpers were receiving $12 and $10. The men employed by the several ice companies throughout the city intend to strike for a similar advance.

A Heavy Fall in Cheese. Port Jervis, N. Y., July 25. A washout occurred on the Erie Railway, two miles west of Cocheton last night, carrying away the track just as a train loaded with cheese was passing. The engine and several cars passed safely, but 21 cars of cheese went down the bank and were totally wrecked. Travel was delayed about 10 hours.

Louis called upon the President at poon to-day and invited him to visit that city in October. The President accepted the invitation, but left the time of his visit to be fixed hereafter.

Washington, July 25.

The White House presented an animated scene the forencon, on the occasion of the reception of the delegation from Missouri to invite the President to visit St. Louis during the State Fair in October. The delegation numbered nearly 100 persons, represeing all the interests of the city, as well as the principal sections of the State. The President received them in the library and shock hands cordially with each. Mayor Francis made the presentations, and when all had been received he addressed the President to the following effect: "The disappointment consequent upon your letter of declination was deep and all-prevailing, but co-extensive with it was the sentiment of the patriotic motives which prompted you to such action. The citizens of St. Louis, irrespective of party, nationality or race, in mass meeting assembled the day after your letter was received, with one voice enthusiastically resolved to extend to yourself and your estimable wife a cordicl invitation to visit the city during the first week in October next, and instructed their Mayor and committee to try and deliver the same in person to you. Assemblages of like character were promptly held in almost every county in the State, indorsing and emphasizing the action taken in St. Louis, and we, therefore, in obedience to the mandates of our people, urge you to favor us with your presence." In response the President said: "My reply to your very complimentary and hearty address will be very brief and practical. At the time you did me the honor, with so many of your fellow citizens, to invite me to your city, I felt it was an invitation to be declined. It was not at all necessary to convince me of your good people should come here felt it was an invitation to be declined. It was not at all necessary to convince me of your good faith, that so many of your good people should come here at this inopportune season to bring this invitation, and yet you don't know how much it has pleased me to see you all. My desire to come and see you has increased each day, and don't feel now that I can do otherwise than occept your invitation. You are aware that I have agreed to visit the city of Atlanta early in October. I only speak of this because when we are about to determine upon the day when I can visit you, this Atlanta visit must be considered. However, this can be arranged afterward. visit must be considered. However, this can be arranged afterward. I shall be glad to meet or orrespond with a committee of citizens and fix the date and make arrangements in detail, but the thing must be done, and I will come." The members of the cabinet and their families were also included in the invitation.

Central Pacific Matters. San Francisco, July 25. The first meeting of the Pacific Railroad Commission in this city was held this morning. E. H. Miller, Secretary and Controller of the Central Pacific, was examined in regard to the companies consolidated with the Central Pacinc, the construction of the road and the distances and time of building from point to point. Witness stated that the company had no books, showing matters relative to the consolidations, and no books containing contracts for building the sections. The contracts with Cyrus Collins, C. D. Bates pnd S. D. Smith were considered. Mr. Miller was instructed by the Commission to ascertain the exact whereabouts of Charles Crocker in Europe so that he could be sent for. He was one of the principal Central tral Pacific, was examined in regard in Europe so that he could be seen. He was one of the principal Central

A Chinatown Burned.

Los Angeles, July 25. Chinatown was almost entirely wiped out by fire early Sunday mornlong tons in 1885, to 5,683,325 long tons ling. The buildings burned include all other assembly hall. All insurance was withdrawn from Chinatown on Saturday, and the loss will be absolute. It is impossible to make an exact estimate of the loss, but it is generally placed at $100,000. Frequent incendiary attempts had been made previously to burn the buildings, and the present fire was undoubtedly incendiary.

POLITICAL

One of the Leading Newspaper Correspondents of the Country Correspondents of the Country Gives a "Gazette" Reporter His Views on the Presidential Problem

Mr. L. C. Washington, the Washington correspondent of the New Orleans Picayune, passed through Reno Saturday evening on his way to California. Mr. Washington is one of the oldest correspondents now at the National Capital. He has been in the newspaper harness for over 40 years, and is known by nearly all the public is known by nearly all the public men of the nation. It is 30 years since he was in California before, and he intends to visit the southern and northern portions of the State before he returns East. He will spend a few days in Reno and or the Comstock when returning home, as he expressed himself highly pleased with the beauties of the surrounding country. Mr. Washington is noted as being the prince of conciseness among the army of correspondents that go and come at the National Capital, and is one of the shrewdest political calculators the shrewdest political calculators in the country. In conversation with a GAZE-TE reporter at the depot concerning the Presidential outlook he gave it as his opinion that the politicians of New York will insist on the candidacy of Governor David Hill as against President Cleveland, and that he would not be surprised to see the former the standard-bearer of the Democratic party. "Mr. Blaine," he said, "is still foremost in the race on the Republican side, and no doubt will get the nomination, and if the shrewdest political calculators will get the nomination, and if Cleveland is his opponent, New York will be a very doubtful State for the Democracy; but with Hill it will be quite different." The Reno Reduction Works.

Says the Battle Mountain Central Nevadan: "W. S. Wilson, the well-known mine owner of Mayville, this county, paid our office a pleasant visit this week, and during the conversation gave a few facts and figures, which may prove ofinterest to those who are working silver mines in this State, and are compelled to ship ores for reduction. The expense of shipping by rail to Sait Lake is $10 50 per ton, sampling $4, hauling $1, assaying $6, treating $19, making a total of $40 50 per ton. The expense of shipping to Reno is, railroad freight $4 60 per ton, working $14, and sampling and assaying free, which makes a total of $18 60 per ton, making a showing in favor of Reno of $21 90 per ton, or in round num-bers $400 per carload of 20 tons, and besides this the works at Salt Lake pay 90 per cent. on all grades of ore, and at Reno the price paid is 90 per cent. on $100 ore, 93 per cent. on $300 ore and 95 per cent. on $500 ore and upwards. It seems to us that there is every reason for any mines in this State to patronize a home institution, in preference to sending rock out of the State. We do not present these statements on mere hearsay. Mr. Wilson will corroborate them by showing the papers, which are the best evidence. We would advise those interested to call on the gen-tlemen and see for themselves.

Reno's Water Supply.

Since the change in the ownership of the Reno Water Works Pierce Evans, the present Superintendent, is doing all that he can to supply Reno with pure and good water. He has constructed at the is filtered every 24 hours. The filtered water is immediately conducted to the supply pipe, so that none of the water n goes into the reservoir at all. It is now the intention of Mr. Evans to thoroughly clean the big reservoir and then subdivide it into four compartments, three of which can be used for settling reservoirs and Winter storage, while the fourth will be the supply for the town. Until these reservoirs can be built, the supply of water to Reno will be limited and must be used sparingly.

Mr. Evans hopes to be able in a few weeks to furnish an abundant supply and will use every endeavor to ply and will use every eudeavor to have it as pure as a filter can make sawdust water.

Taking in the Sights. Mr. Theodore Harris, of New York City, a very prominent in- John Ross, surance adjuster and capitalist, passed through Reno to San Francisco on Saturday evening's over-MALTA, July 25.

CELEBRATED STEAMBOAT SPRINGS So attractive, I feel like a new man. Before me, temptingly enough, is a nice cold luncheon, a box of fragrant Key Wests, and a few bottles of sparkling beer, as well as a few friends chatting pleasantly together. The sighing of the wind and the pleasant rippling sound of the clear waters near by of Steamboat creek, as they course on to swell the volume of the Truckee, and make our successful ranchers happier still, the reader cannot but excuse me if I digress just a little bit by indulging my fancy. I had a double purpose, too, in being here, because I had heard of the great discovery made last week by one of the proprietors through the explosion of a dynamite cartridge. It seems that when first these springs were discovered by the early argonauts, that hot and boiling waters shot heavenward from many orifices to a height of from 25 to 75 feet. Astouishment naturally followed, and in the twinkling of an eye from the strange formation of the hills whence this phenomena emanated, some one who has long since been forgotten, ycleped them the Steamboat Springs. Time passed, prospectors became numer-ous, California became a household ous, California became a household word the world over and thousands flocked thither to find an El Dorado. The tide receded and soon toward the rising and not the setting sun wended their way. The Comstock opened up a new "Pandora's box" for the bardy adventurer, and along the old Geiger grade for years heavy trains, laden with aching and longing hearts, were struggling hard to reach the base of grand OLD MT. DAVIDSON, There to rest, preparatory to delv-ing down deep into the guiches and valleys below to contribute the millions of wealth which since have so enriched the world. Washoe City and the surrounding country sprang into notoriety by rich ore discoveries, and then the hills were alive with brave men, all engaged alive with brave men, all engaged in one common purpose. About this period attention again was attracted to these natural springs, and they were located. Steam baths, from Nature's bosom, were unheard of by many at that time. About 20 years ago a Mr. Cullen and his partner were prospecting to learn the depth of this supply current of boiling water, when, by a mere accident, he fell into the boiling, seething mass and died a vistim to misdirected enterprise. The flesh literally dropped from his flesh literally dropped from his bones, when he was taken out. But he had struck the great hot water (and steam) lead. From that time on various speculators attempted to successfully manage the springs and induce strangers who suffered from impurities of the Truckee.

The steam soon grew less until about four years ago it disappeared altogether. This spring lies immediately west of the main bath-house, and is 20 feet deep and seven feet square. It had been absolutely abandoned, and the present proprietors,

Concluded to work all the contiguous steam-producing orifices until last week, when the former applied dynamite cartridges to the same locality, when lo and behold! the dynamite cartridges to the same locality, when lo and behold! the old spring opened and the water issued forth from the earth in large volumes, rising to a height of 65 to 75 feet. The steam was so intense and the force of the water so great that it shot out like the incessant waters of Iceland's glaciers. Wherever it fell paint gave way, shingles turned up their edges and the earth in the vicinity was one mass of foam and cloud, while gravel was cast in every direction, the intense heat cracking the windows of the bath-house, and otherwise astonishing the lucky beholders. As quick as opportunity would permit the waters thus belching forth were under control, and to-day are held in reserve for the purpose of furnishing steam to the large and commodious building, from underneath which it emenates. The water and steam is largely impregnated with a sulphurine aroma—not at all objectionable to the elfactories. The building is very capacious, having in it 15 well-furnished rooms, where customers can be now accommodated with

The restaurant and bar and parlor and piano are only some 35 feet from the main entrance to the bath-rooms, while the private residence of Mr. Farnham is just a little north-east of the same. To the east of the bar and dining-room is a large gymnasium and ten-pin alley, while scattered in different sections of the location, which embraces 80 acres of rich land, now blooming with alfalfa and beautifully adorued wittall maples, walnut, locust and maestic poplars, are quite a number of lovely cottages for the use of families. Right in the very heart of the grove in which I write there is a dancing pavilion, in dimensions 75 x50 feet, in which children amuse themselves on roller skates during their visitations, while the youth x50 feet, in which children amuse themselves on roller skates during their visitations, while the youth and beauty of Virginia and Reno trip the light fantastic on festive occasions. slowly. Lafayette Moore, the son of the accused, was called to the witness stand this morning in behalf of the defense, and the day up to 3 o'clock this afternoon was consumed in hearing his testimony. Nothing particularly new was developed, except that his sister Alice, on the day prior to her death, made six broids of her hair and requested that they be distributed among the members of the family. This evidence was brought out with the intention of showing that Alice, fully 24 hours before her death, expecied to die very soon. The witness also testified that he knew of his sister Alice taking a dose of bluestone (a poison) when the fam-ily lived at Silver City, Idaho, but that it served as an emetic, and her life was thus saved.

OFFICE OF C. M. FASSETT, DEUGGIST AND ASSATER, RENO, NEV., June 28, 1887. Heno, Net., June 26, 1887.)

T. K. Hymers, Eso., Chairman Board of County Commissioners—Dear Sir:
In accordance with your request I have made examinations of three samples of water furnished by you, with special reference to such impurities as would render it unfit for domestic use, and beg leave to present the following report:

Sample No. 1 was taken from the river about ten miles above town, at the point where the Highland ditch takes it supply; sample No 2 was taken from the main reservoir, four feet from the surface, near where the water used in the town is taken; sample No. 3 was taken from the Highland ditch just before it empties into the main reservoir. The following is a abulated statement of the results of the tests made:

The ammonia found indicates the proportion of contamination from anima sources, such as sewage, decomposin animal matter, etc., and in Nos. Impurities resulting from sawdust in the river would be shown in the table under the head of "organic solids," but the results obtained show that the amount of such matter is very small; much less, indeed, than is contained in many natural springs, some of which carry five grains or more of organic matter to the gallon just where they bubble from the earth.

town through the main reservoir is not sufficiently pure to be used for domestic purposes with safety.

Secondly—That the water in the river is reasonably pure and wholesome, and Thirdly—That the water supplied to the town receives the greater part of its im-purities in the main reservoir and its approaches.
As applicable to the sawdust question, I quote the following extract from an arrange of the sawdust parties.

As applicable to the sawdust question, I quote the following extract from an ardicle on water by Professor S. P. Sadtler, Ph. BILL NYE AS A LAWYER.

A dear friend in Pennsylvania writes me that he has learned casually that some years ago I was a member of the legal profession, and he asks me to state, if I will, publicly, whether that is true, and, if so, why I abandoned the profession.

It is true that I did practice law in the West for a short time, in a very quiet kind of a way. After a few months, however, I abandoned my lucrative practice to accept the portfolio of the Laramie City Post-office. During my brief but tempestuous career as an attorney, I paid out $120 for rent, and drew a chattel mortgage, which I was never paid for, as near as I am able to judge.

My principal reason, however, for abandoning the profession was the sudden death of my client. When a young lawyer has assiduously sat and looked out of his office window for two months, and a client comes in and shows signs of intrusting business to him, there springs up at once between the two a warm friendship. Such was the case with me. A middle-aged gentleman came into my office one day and said he had been referred to me by a party in town, and asked me if I had leisure to attend fice one day and said he had been referred to me by a party in town, and asked me if I had leisure to attend him. I said that I would lay aside other matters and attend to him-at once, if he wished. He said it would be a great accommodation if I would allow my other clients to accumulate in the hall for a few moments, and in the meantime do the business that was on his mind. He had asked Charlie Kitchen, at the Thoresburgh House, to give him the name of some poor young lawyer, and Kitchen had told him that I was about the poorest lawyer he knew of, so he had come right to me.

I saw at once that he was a shrewd business man, and I did all I could to please him. He was delighted with the promptness with which I had done the work, and said he would have more for me to do very soon, as he had a weeklead the controlling in with the promptness with which I had done the work, and said he would have more for me to do very soon, as he had purchased the controlling interest in a new silver mine over at Jelm mountain. On the strength of this revival in trade, I went down town and bought a half ton of coal.

I then opened a set of double entry books, which I still retain, and which are almost as good as new. I had just got my new client fairly on the books when he was killed by falling down a shaft a distance of 200 feet in a perpendicular direction. I then said that the practice of law was invested with too much sorrow and sadness for me. I could not endure the constant sundering of pleasant, friendly ties which an active practice demanded. I sold my Revised Statutes to a new Notary Public at Last Chance, and gave my other law books to a warm personal friend. Having thus disposed of my library, I retired from the practice of my profession by taking down my sign and nailing it to the front door of the pesthouse at the close of a beautiful summer day. There is nothing that will nailing if to the front door of the pest-house at the close of a beautiful sum-mer day. There is nothing that will dam up the flood of professional business so quickly as a course like this—if you have a flood to dam and wish to have it dammed quickly— but enough of that. A young lawyer may be ever so popular and over-worked; no matter, he can remove his library to the smallpox hospital, and in a week he will have all the physical relaxation and intellectual repose he wants.

physical relaxation and intellectual repose he wants.
So like the swift flight of a brilliant meteor across a black sky, I flashed through the heavens, lighting up the wide realms of space, and then disappeared forever. With thousands of other people to select from, death sought out the only client I ever had and gathered him in. With a world full of the aged and the sick, to say nothing of Chinamen and Indians not taxed, the grim reaper struck his sickle into a man in whom I felt a wonderful interest. No one knows who has not seen his sole client cut down before his face, the great sorrow that settles down upon the heart row that settles down upon the heart at such time. How lonely my office seemed after that. How still it seemed. I could not endure it. I at nce abandoned the profession to its fate.

Contrary to my fears, however, it rallied. Young blood entered into the practice, and in three months after I had turned the key in my office door one would hardly notice that so recently a bright light in the regal profession had been squelched, and a clarion voice that had always rung out for eternal justice and equity, at so much per equity, had ceased to vibrate.

I was clear-headed and cool, but a normally conservative attorney. I was not only conservative in my pracwas not only conservative in my practice, but in my gross receipts. I saw at once that I could not afford to pay $40 per month rent and depend upon a book account of $2.50 to offset it. While I may say that I was passionately fond of my study, and the practice of the law, I felt most keenly the ostracism and the depressing isolation which it seemed to engender. tion which it seemed to engender.

There is a story told of almost every doctor of any note in the world, the amounts varying according to the prominence of the man. It is like this:

"Well, doctor, what is my bill?"

"Let me see. I've been attending you a week, haven't I?"

"Yes, sir, just about."

"What's your business?"

"I am a lawyer, sir."

"What would you charge me for professional services for a week?"

"Seventy-five dollars, sir."

I'Well, then, I'll only charge you the same amount."

A sewing girl who was waiting to pay the doctor almost fainted when she heard this conversation, as she thought she would surely get off with $4.

"Doctor, I came to pay my bill," she said, tremblingly, "but I fear I am so far from being able to do it that you will be angry."

"What do you work at, my girl?"

"If am a common seemstress sir."

"How much do you make in a week?"

"Only about seventy-five cents, sir." "Your bill is 75 cents."
